Maynooth University
Ollscoil Mhá Nuad

Department of Law
Assistant Professor / Lecturer in Criminology
Permanent

The Role

Maynooth University is committed to a strategy in which the primary University goals of excellent research and scholarship and outstanding education are interlinked and equally valued.

We are seeking an excellent academic to join our staff as Assistant Professor/Lecturer in Criminology, to support the delivery of our undergraduate programmes, the BCL (Law and Criminology) and BA Criminology, and our postgraduate MA in Comparative Criminology and Criminal Justice.

Candidates should have an excellent broad knowledge of criminology and criminal justice. While applicants with specialisms in all areas of criminology/criminal justice are welcome, the School especially welcomes applicants with experience of or expertise in the field of youth justice.

The person appointed will have a proven record of teaching, research, and publication, appropriate to career stage. They will be expected to make a strong contribution to the teaching programme of the School, to undertake teaching duties on the School’s undergraduate and postgraduate programmes, to facilitate and supervise placements and research projects for students, and to supervise Master’s and PhD students.

The appointee will be expected to build a strong research profile that supports the University and School research strategy, including affiliating to the School’s Centre for Criminology, and working with colleagues on national and international research. The appointee will be expected to sustain and conduct research, engage in scholarship of quality and substance, and generate publications of international standard.

Principal Duties

Teaching:

Undergraduate and postgraduate teaching duties are assigned by the Head of School. The duties will include:
• Teaching and assessing students at undergraduate level. This may include lecturing, tutoring, leading practical learning activities, project/dissertation supervision, and setting, supervising and marking assessments;
• Teaching, supervising and assessing postgraduate students, including lecturing, leading seminars and other learning activities, supervision of student research activities, and setting, supervising, and marking assessments;
• Enhancing, and innovating in, teaching and assessment practice;
• Contributing, as required, to the assurance and enhancement of teaching quality;
• Outreach and promotional activities, and the recruitment and selection of undergraduate and postgraduate students;
• Organising and leading extra-curricular activities to support student learning;
• Developing and enhancing the curriculum;
• Designing and delivering new courses.

Research & Scholarship:

Building a research and scholarly profile is an essential part of an academic career. This will include:

• Conducting research, and engaging in scholarship of quality and substance in the discipline;
• Generating external income or securing resources to support scholarly activity as necessary;
• Disseminating research and scholarly outcomes through: peer reviewed publication; presentation at national and international conferences; preparation of professional reports; commercialization; or other appropriate means;
• Affiliating with a University Research Institute, where appropriate;
• Building research capacity;
• Fostering links with other institutions which will benefit both research and teaching at Maynooth University;
• Integrating research into the teaching curriculum;
• Supervising research students and post-doctoral fellows.

Service:

The academic staff members of the University are critical to achieving the strategic objectives of the University, and as such are required to engage in work that serves the collective strategic needs of the University. This may include:

• Administrative and service duties;
• Leading, or contributing to, strategic projects and initiatives;
• Contributing to the internationalisation of the University;
• Outreach and engagement activities, including organising and leading extra-curricular student activities;
• Collaborative work with external partners;
• Activities to promote the University locally, nationally and internationally;
• Carrying out any other duties within the scope, spirit, and purpose of a Maynooth University academic post.

Administrative and other duties:

This will include:

• Undertaking administrative tasks within the School, Faculty, and University as required and as assigned by the Head of School, the Dean, or the President;
• Attending and serving on School, Faculty, Institute, and University committees, as appropriate;
• Attending courses and engaging in other activities associated with professional development, as appropriate;
• Complying with all University policies.

The ideal candidate will have:

Essential

• A PhD (or nearing completion: viva complete with minor corrections) in Law, Criminology, Sociology, Psychology or a cognate discipline;
• Excellent broad knowledge of criminology and criminal justice; experience of or expertise in the field of youth justice is particularly welcome;
• A record of scholarly work and publication of international quality, demonstrating potential to become a significant contributor in the field;
• Experience of and a demonstrated commitment to undergraduate and postgraduate teaching;
• Good administrative, organisational, teamwork, and communication skills.

Desirable

• Experience of supervising graduate research students;
• Experience of, and commitment to, working in an interdisciplinary setting;
• Experience of, and a demonstrated commitment to programme development and academic innovation.

The University

Maynooth University) is a very distinctive university, a collegial institution focused on science and engineering, humanities, and social sciences, and equally committed to research, teaching and community engagement. Located in Ireland’s only university town, its distinctive features and character owe much to its unique history and heritage. It provides a high-quality educational experience to over 13,500 students on a campus with 18th century roots and 21st century dynamism.

The strategic trajectory and accomplishments of Maynooth University, in the 25 years since its establishment as an autonomous public university, are exceptional, and a source of great pride to the university community, staff, students and alumni. Maynooth University is now acknowledged to be one of the leading young universities in the world, and in 2022 ranked # 1 in Ireland in the latest Times Higher Education (THE) Best Young University Rankings. Maynooth University’s growing global reputation is based on the originality, quality, importance and impact of its research and scholarship, commitment to teaching and learning, the quality of academic programmes, and its leadership in widening participation in higher education. The sources of success are the dedication of its staff and the energy and engagement of its students.

Maynooth University is a place of lively contrasts – a modern institution, dynamic, rapidly-growing, research-led and engaged, yet grounded in historic academic strengths and scholarly traditions. With over 15,000 students Maynooth offers a range of programmes at undergraduate, postgraduate and doctoral level in the humanities, science and engineering and social sciences, including business, law and education. The University also offers a range of international programmes and partnerships.

Maynooth’s unique collegial culture fosters an interdisciplinary approach to research, which its world-class academics bring to bear in tackling some of the most fundamental challenges facing society today. The University’s research institutes and centres consolidate and deliver this impact as vibrant communities of learning, discovery and creation. Research at Maynooth also is very much central to its teaching and the University prides itself on placing equal value on its research and teaching missions.
Principles and Values

Maynooth University is committed to the following values:

- Scholarly rigour;
- Academic freedom;

Faculty and Research Institutes

The Faculty of Social Sciences comprises the Departments of Adult and Community Education; Anthropology; Applied Social Studies; Design Innovation; Economics; Education; Geography; Sociology; the Froebel Department of Primary and Early Childhood Education; the School of Business; and the School of Law and Criminology.

The role of the Faculty is to co-ordinate the academic activities of individual departments, to oversee the strategic development of departments and to support interdepartmental programmes. The University has also developed several interdisciplinary institutes to support excellent research and to build research capacity across disciplines, including the Maynooth University Social Sciences Institute (MUSSI) and the ALL Institute.

The School

The School of Law and Criminology has 53 full-time permanent staff. It offers undergraduate and postgraduate degrees, based on its research strengths in Law and Criminology, in a vibrant learning environment. The School is one of the newest academic units within the University and is amongst the largest common law academic units in the EU. It offers a number of popular undergraduate and postgraduate degree programmes, educating over 2,000 students.

In particular, the School has been at the forefront of the development of the discipline of Criminology in the Republic of Ireland through the roll out of exciting new postgraduate and undergraduate programmes. In 2016, it launched its MA in Comparative Criminology and Criminal Justice followed one year later by the roll out of the first BCL in Law and Criminology in the Republic of Ireland. Students in Maynooth University are also afforded the unique opportunity to study Criminology through an Arts degree. To support these popular programmes, the School has invested in its staffing base in the areas of Criminology and Criminal Justice so that it is now home to one of the largest cohorts of criminologists on the island of Ireland. The School is currently seeking to recruit an additional academic colleague to contribute to these programmes.

The School places a very strong emphasis on research, and is currently home to two European Research Council (ERC) awardees. Four research centres anchor the School’s approach to research: the Centre for Criminology, the Centre for European Law, the Centre for International Justice, and the Centre for Technology Law and Policy. Staff members regularly publish in leading international academic journals, and with leading international publishing houses. The School has particular research strengths in the areas of international justice and human rights, law and technology, environmental law, EU Law and policy, intellectual property law, health law, global business perspectives, criminology and criminal justice, and comparative legal theory. In addition, our programmes highlight the practical application of legal and criminological study, and underline the importance of legal skills, such as negotiation and advocacy.

The School is student-focused and outward-facing; it collaborates widely with colleagues within the University and beyond. The School has undergone a period of rapid expansion of its range of programmes at undergraduate and postgraduate levels. It offers, amongst others, the LLB (single major), a suite of BCL (double major) degrees at undergraduate level (including Ireland’s first BCL (Law and Criminology) degree), and a suite of postgraduate programmes, including the LLM programmes in International Business Law, International Justice, and Global Legal Studies, and the MA in Comparative Criminology and Criminal Justice.

The School was one of the first two Law Schools in Ireland to successfully secure an Athena SWAN Bronze award, which recognises work undertaken to advance gender equality for staff and students in Higher Education.
